Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-14 in the reply filed on September 11, 2009 is acknowledged.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

> The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, "a spray pyrolysis process" is indefinite as to which this refers to. It appears that applicant intended - spray pyrolysis -.

Where applicant acts as his or her own lexicographer to specifically define a term of a claim contrary to its ordinary meaning, the written description must clearly redefine the claim term and set forth the uncommon definition so as to put one reasonably skilled in the art on notice that the applicant intended to so redefine that claim term. Process Control Corp. v. HydReclaim Corp., 190 F.3d 1350, 1357, 52 USPQ2d 1029, 1033 (Fed. Cir. 1999). The term "organic acid salt solution" in claims 1-4,7 is used by the claims to mean a nitrate such as $Mn(NO_3)_2$, while the accepted meaning is a carbon containing acid salt such an acetate. The term is indefinite because the specification does not clearly redefine the term. Also see MPEP 2173.05(a).

in the art on notice that the applicant intended to so redefine that claim term. Process Control Corp. v. HydReclaim Corp., 190 F.3d 1350, 1357, 52 USPQ2d 1029, 1033 (Fed. Cir. 1999). The term "organic acid salt of lithium" in claim 1 appears to be redefined by the instant specification to mean a hydroxide such as LiOH, while the accepted meaning of an organic acid salt is a carbon containing acid salt such an acetate. The term is indefinite because the specification does not clearly redefine the term. Supra.

In claims 6,9,10, the parentheses around the wherein clause are superfluous and thus indefinite.

In claim 11, "the step of forming the intermediate composite oxide" lack(s) proper antecedent basis in the claim(s). It appears that - the step of obtaining the intermediate composite oxide powder – was intended.

In claim 12, "PVA" is indefinite as to what this is or represents.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

> (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.

4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamashita '786 or Japan 12-149923.

Yamashita and JP '923 each suggest the instantly claimed process of spray pyrolysis of nitrate solutions of metals such as manganese, cobalt or nickel and mixing with lithium formate, ie. organic acid salt of lithium, and heating. See the examples of each.

The subject matter as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have selected the overlapping portion of the range disclosed by the reference because overlapping ranges have been held to be a prima facie case of obviousness, see In re Malagari, 182 USPQ 549.

range which is within the range of applicant's claims because it has been held to be obvious to select a value in a known range by optimization for the best results, see In re Boesch, 205 USPQ 215.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
